DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-20, drawn to a vibratory screen-tensioning member, classified in class 209, subclass 404.
- II. Claims 21-33 and 39-41, drawn to a vibratory screening machine, classified in class 209, subclass 352.
- III. Claims 34-37 and 38, drawn to a vibratory screen, classified in class 209, subclass 392.

Inventions II and I are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the combination is directed to a vibratory screening machine which requires screen engaging members, but does not require a tensioning member. The subcombination has separate utility such as a screen-tensioning member in a vibratory screening machine which requires a tensioning member.

Inventions II and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the combination is directed to a vibratory screening machine, but not a vibratory screening machine which requires a vibratory screen wherein the screen includes a plate, first and second side edges, first and second series of spaced apertures proximate said first and second side edges, respectively, and first and second flanges on the plate located outwardly of the first and second series of apertures. The subcombination has separate utility such as a vibratory screen in a vibratory screening machine which requires doesn't require a fixed screen engaging member on a first wall and a movable screen engaging member on a second wall.

Inventions I and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention I has separate utility such as a screen tensioning member with a screen which does not require a plate, first and second side edges, first and second series of spaced apertures proximate said first and second side edges, respectively, and first and second flanges on the plate located outwardly of the first and second series of apertures. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
